THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 23, 1883

This Year's Emigration.

Advices from the East foreshadow an unusually large emigration to the Territories the coming spring. Many large companies, already organized, are composed wholly of discharged soldiers and their families, who, after the turmoil and excitement of war, are coming to seek a home in the more peaceful west. The war has made our people more enterprising, if possible, than ever before. Men who left the plow, the anvil, the workshop and the counter, and rushed to the defense of their country in her hour of peril, have caught the restless spirit of the age, and can no longer be satisfied with their former condition and theater of action. Besides, the rough life of the camp and the unavoidable exposure incident to an active campaign in the field, has peculiarly fitted them for pioneers of civilization in these western wilds.

The discipline of the army has neither injured nor its influence demoralized them. By meeting danger face to face—and fighting it out—they have gained manliness and courage, and, thanks to the philanthropy and Christianity of our nation, no man has, per force, become worse, morally or intellectually by his service in the army.

Those noble adjuncts of our armies, the Sanitary and the Christian Commissions, have made Religion and Benevolence the hand-maidens of war. In every hospital, on every battle-field, by the couch of the dying and at the post of the living, their emissaries have scattered comforts and blessings. No man can come within the circle of their united influences and not be benefited thereby. War, through their agencies, is shorn of half its horrors. To-day there is more virtue in the camp than in the metropolis. Songs of praise and thanksgiving go up from every field of battle. The decay of religion and morality, which usually follows a long protracted war, cannot result from this. The army carries intelligence and temperance along with it, and those who return from an honorable service ought to be, and will be, better men and better citizens than they were before.

Therefore we congratulate Utah and the adjoining Territories upon the coming emigration. It is composed not of the scum and dregs of European society—not of those who, reared under the despotic governments of the old world, have never dared to think, much less to act for themselves, but "men" who know their rights and, knowing, dare maintain them.

We hope and trust that Utah will receive a due proportion of this year's emigration. All she needs is a population alive to the riches with which nature has endowed her. She needs men who will not wait to be waked up, but who will "wake up themselves;" men who fear God rather than man, and love the commonwealth more than they fear the denunciations of the "Church." Then, and not till then, may we expect to see the energies, enlightenment and manliness of American civilization diffusing itself among these hills and valleys, and, by the attrition of independent thought and intelligent action, arousing the dormant energies of a people who, living on American soil and claiming the protection of its flag, have yet to learn what its freedom is.

A strong minded woman ought to be content with the enlargement of the "sphere of woman" that has taken place since the introduction of hoops. The original Eve was Adams bone, but our Eves are whalebone.

"The Frail of New York," Polygamy in Utah.

By contrast great faults can sometimes be made to shine as virtues, and mankind are ever prone to forget the beam in their own eyes while they point out the mote in their brothers'. Notwithstanding the old proverb, the pot will call the kettle black, and simmer, and boil and steam in all the self-complacency imaginable, seemingly oblivious to the fact that it also is besmeared with the same soot and smut for which it condemns its gentler and more modest companion.

"Talking of the criminal partiality of society in regard to the 'kept' women style of living," it might possibly be thought that if there are degrees in the crime—for a hideous crime it certainly is—and that they increased in anything like a geometrical ratio, the "young villain" who "kept" but one would be an angel of light beside some of the hoary-headed sinners in Utah. In fact we would not care to enter upon our list of friends the man who had arrived even to the "second" series.

The crime of prostitution prevails to a greater or less extent in all large cities, and to devise some means to correct the evil, has been the study of philanthropists and political economists for ages. But it is legalized in France, permitted in Great Britain, taxed in the German States and canonized in Utah. The picture it presents is of great interest to "the 'regeneration' folks out here." They see in it a monstrous sin, which, under the name of Religion, is endeavoring to fasten itself upon civilization. They see in it, not yet a "putrid corpse," but a living, crawling monster, seizing upon the vitals of society and claiming a divine right to remain there. Perhaps they could relate more than one "sad case of deception and fraud," and there is a growing opinion that a certain "Church" in this city is almost crushed to earth with the weight of its wealth—and sin—and that it ought to do something to provide for its poor and those unfortunates whom it has thrown helpless and homeless upon the world.

No, no, gentlemen, you cannot convince even yourselves that polygamy in Utah is right because prostitution in New York is wrong. You had best stick to your text and say it was forced upon you by divine revelation; teach your victims that self-immolation is absolutely requisite to their future happiness, and if perchance, any of the more sensitive among them, shrink from their unnatural position, and rebel against their spiritual (?) masters, curse them before the congregation, forbid any person's offering them food or shelter, let them starve in the streets, or rot in the ravines, and then go your ways, eat, drink and be merry, thanking God that ignorance, superstition and bigotry cry "amen" to all your counsels!

SAN FRANCISCO has twenty-four public free schools and employs one hundred and thirty-two teachers, paying a county school tax of thirty-five cents on each hundred dollars for their support. Under the control of practical and efficient teachers, Superintendents and Boards of Education, her public school system has become the model and pride of the educational interests of the Pacific coast. But with her 19,000 children, between the ages of four and eighteen, she needs more school houses and more teachers.

Hurry up, gentlemen of the "iron clad" Board, and give Pelton a school. He will not "down" at your bidding.

A FUGITIVE Slave, now a rich merchant, entertained Theodore Tilton at a sumptuous banquet at Chicago.

Managers may be known by the company they keep.

Y. M. C. A. ASSOCIATION.—On Tuesday evening the association held an adjourned regular meeting which was more than usually entertaining. The society is now organized of a stable basis and has added to the interest of meetings by instituting essays, select readings from the poets, addresses and declamations. At the last meeting a fine essay was read by one member and by another a choice selection of poetry.

A motion was adopted that the meetings be held publicly and the community generally are cordially invited to attend.

The next regular meeting will be held on Monday evening next, at Daft's Hall, on which occasion the exercises will be more than usually interesting, consisting of declamations, essays and select readings, by members of the association. The hall will be thrown open to the public and a full attendance is expected.

As will be seen, by reference to our advertising columns, the Gold Cañon G. and S. M. Co., at Egan, have levied an assessment (No. 1) of three dollars per foot. This looks like business. The mines in that locality are among the richest in the world; and the different companies cannot be too soon in developing their claims. We learn that the Hope Company are making extensive preparations for the early working of their lead—said to be very rich—and we hope soon to chronicle the active operations of many others. Hurry up with your assessments, gentlemen. "Those who play must pay."

S. L. CITY, March 22d.

Mr. Editor:—Your notice of my benefit on Monday night, at the Assembly Room, lacks the essential remuneration. You have been misinformed. I dismissed the house at twenty-five minutes to 8 o'clock, for want of an audience. As we are known here by classes, I will designate my auditory—about twelve Gentiles to two Mormons, to the latter I gave complimentary tickets.

Yours, very respectfully,

LYNE.

FORNEY ON PEACE.—The editor of the Press, in his issue of February 4th, remarks on the prospect of peace:

We have reason to doubt that men who are thirty years in educating the South to rebel have learned in four years to submit. We do not forget that Lee has just been made the commander-in-chief of the rebel armies, and that his own army, the concentration of the rebellion, has never been decisively defeated. While we have an unshaken faith in the ability of the United States to conquer the recognition of its authority; and can believe that its enemies are beginning to despair of success, we do not think that prospective ruin implies their immediate submission. We have seen in this war many false dawns, and know how hard it is to distinguish the mirage from the reality. The white rose of peace may not blossom before the weeds that choke it have been fully uprooted by war.

LOVE WILL FIND A WAY.—There is a cockney youth who, every time he wishes to get a glimpse of his sweetheart, cries "fire?" directly under her window. In the alarm of the moment, she plunges her head out of the window and inquires "Where?" when he poetically slaps himself on the bosom and exclaims, "Ere, my Hangelina!"

"WHERE are you going?" said Selyn to an acquaintance.

"To see a friend."

"Well, I'll go with you, for I never saw one yet."

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE.

BY A RESIDENT OF UTAH.

ARTICLE 4.

According to the existing usages in all parts of the Federal Union except Utah, Probate Judges exercise their legitimate jurisdiction in the adjudication on trial of wills, etc. for which Probate Courts were specifically instituted. The absurdity as well as the illegality of giving to Probate Courts jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases, both in chancery and common law, after the passage of the Act authorizing it, became so apparent to the wily originators of this as well as other laws passed especially under his direction for the benefit of himself and his clan, and his inability to justify that law by any standard law of other states or territories, or by any just precedent, that it led to the passing of the following unjust, prohibitory law by which the combined wisdom of centuries was discarded, and a vacuum created to be filled by the passing of such laws as would subserve his party interests, and enable him to obtain a more thorough hold upon, and control of the entire people of the Territory, including the Legislature and the Judiciary. The following is the model law referred to. It was passed on the 14th day of January, 1854, and is published on page 260 of the revised laws of Utah, for that year: "That all questions of law, the meaning of writing other than laws, and the admissibility of testimony shall be decided by the court; and no laws, nor parts of laws, shall be read, argued, cited or adopted in any court during any trial except those enacted by the Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Territory, and those passed by the Congress of the United States when applicable; and no report, decision or doings of any court shall be read, argued, cited or adopted as precedent in any other trial." Further comment on the above law of convenience is deemed unnecessary. The intelligent public will not fail to see its design and bearing, and will accord to its author the merit due for the shrewdness of his stratagem.

The thorough sifting of testimony in court by attorneys has ever been deprecated in Utah, fearful, no doubt, that it might evolve unpleasant reflections on some of the actors behind the scenes, who desire to remain concealed while they "pull the strings that make the puppets dance." Among all civilized people, it is conceded that the truth is better and more fully obtained in courts of justice by a thorough examination and cross-examination of witnesses, and a full representation of all the merits and demerits of the case at issue, pro and con, by a thorough student and professor of the law, than by a mere statement of the evidence by either party who are necessarily more or less interested in the issue, and whose testimony is liable to be tinged with partiality. But in Utah, this practice has been discountenanced as a "twisting and turning" dangerous to the true ends of justice. When, however it has been obvious that the employment of a shrewd and well informed lawyer would subserve Mormon interests, it has been considered allowable to engage his services, and to meet such exigencies, Mormons have been educated in the law under Brigham Young's own supervision, employed by him, and known to the church, as church lawyers. Such was Wm. G. Mills, the poet, who, on his last mission to his native country, England, had the good sense to withdraw from the Brighamite faction of the church, for which he was branded as a villain, and charged with crimes of which there is but little probability that he was ever guilty. There have been others besides Mr. Mills educated as lawyers, who are still retained by Brigham Young for service when needed. They can "turn and twist" all they please in behalf of the church or its faithful adherents; but should they purpose the advocacy of the right of justice against "the faithful" let them first pause and reflect on the solemn admonition of the ghost of the murdered Babbitt, "BEWARE!"

A singular circumstance was lately communicated to the French Photographic Society by M. Placet. The magnesium light is so powerful, that when placed at a short distance from the object-glass it will melt its surface. An object-glass spoilt in this way was produced by him at that sitting. Photographers had better take the hint, and not bring the light too near the apparatus.

Local Matters.

This spring like weather affords a harvest for our merchants. While in town yesterday, we observed the former life, bustle and stir about the city, which has for so long a time been quieted and "frozen up."

The streets were alive with teams, pedestrians and ladies.

Greenbacks were rapidly exchanged for dry goods, groceries, etc. Bankers wore an amiable smile; restaurants were full of good people devouring everything before them, while men, women and children were busy going to and fro smiling and basking beneath the summer sky.

The roads are soft, splashy and muddy yet; but the atmosphere is delightfully warm and the bright shining sun cheers everybody, even those who have studied despondency and believe it to be a virtue.

BODENBURG & KAHN have made a great reduction in the prices of their large and well selected stock of merchandise. The public can buy goods cheaper than ever of them. Their boots and shoes are going at cost. Rush to Bodenbourg & Kahn's everybody and take advantage of their liberal inducements.

THE LAST OF THE SEASON.—The Y. M. Literary Association have determined to hold another of their pleasing "Sociables" on Friday evening next. It is announced as the last of the season, and extensive preparations are being made to make it the most pleasant.

We expect to see our Theater filled from pit to ceiling to-night.

Remington has a good bill for his benefit. All the best performers in our midst have volunteered. Soldiers spend your money for home amusements if for any.

THE telegraph actually refuses to give us a word. Wonder if Grant taking Richmond and asking Lee for his sword won't be the first news? We'll bet on't.

PRIVATE KELLEY, of Co. "D," 3d Batt. Inf., who committed suicide in his quarters by shooting himself with a pistol was buried in the Camp Cemetery, with military honors, on Tuesday last.

We publish the card of Mr. T. A. Lyne to-day, and we regret that so able and worthy an actor does not meet with the encouragement and patronage that he so well deserves.

Why are gentlemen, practicing at a mark, in pistol shooting, and a lady carrying a muff, alike? Because they both do it to keep their hands in.

SHERMAN AND IMPERTINENT GEORGIANS.—A letter from Savannah says:

Speaking of subjugation, Gen. Sherman has a very terse way of meeting this difficulty. To a proud lady who said to him, "General, you may conquer, but you can't subjugate us." He instantly replied, "I don't want to subjugate you, I mean to kill you—the whole of you, if you don't stop this rebellion."

To another, who wanted to know of him how long the war would last, he said, "Well, well," in his rapid earnest manner, "I don't know; perhaps six or eight years, and then twenty or twenty-five years of guerrilla warfare; long enough to destroy this whole generation, and then we'll begin anew."

In this way he dashes their arrogance, right and left, to the winds, and they leave his presence utterly confounded, and, at least, with due respect to the Yankee General.

Gov. OGLESBY, of Illinois, is a Kentuckian by birth, and doubtless shared the prejudices of his native state; but he has been fighting rebels until he carries a pretty fair allowance of lead in his body, which seems to have operated to clear his brain since, in his Inaugural Address, he says:

"Is the public sentiment of the country to be checked or delayed in its determination to eradicate slavery from the soil of the Republic by the constant inquiry, 'What is to become of the negro after he is free?' It might better be asked, what may not become of him? He can labor, he can learn, he can fight, improve, and aspire, and if, after we shall have tried, for so long to make him a useful free man as we have a useless slave, we shall fail, and he shall fail, there will be time enough left in which to solve this persistent question."

THE CANADIAN TROUBLES.—The London Army and Navy Gazette of recent date remarks:

The Canadian difficulties will, in all probability, lapse; but not harmlessly. The display of attachment to Great Britain and of patriotic zeal which the recent events called forth, will add to the many sources of irritation which the contest in America has opened, and will transfer to the Canadians a full share of the overflowing animosity with which Great Britain is regarded by the mass of the Northern people; but the Canadians have certainly established fresh claims to imperial sympathy.

CHARLES LAMB is said to have found considerable difficulty in falling into the routine of clerical business. Once, at the India House a superior said to him,

"I remarked, Mr. Lamb, that you come very late to your duties."

"Yes, sir," replied the essayist, "but, then, I leave so early."

The oddness of the excuse is said to have silenced the reprover.

"Paddy, who is dead now?" said one to an Irishman.

"Faix, I don't know, unless it's the man in the coffin."

LATE Paris fashions represent the ladies as wearing coat tails a yard long.
